CRE

Who We Are

Founded in 2008, Canadian Roots Exchange is a national Indigenous youth-led organization that collaborates with communities to provide programs, grants and opportunities that are grounded in Indigenous ways of knowing and being and designed to strengthen and amplify the voices of Indigenous youth aged 14-29. CRE envisions a future where Indigenous youth are empowered and connected as dynamic leaders in vibrant and thriving communities.

In an effort to maintain this vision, CRE ensures that 5 core pillars are interwoven into the fabric of CRE's programmatic frameworks. As such all programs and granting opportunities have been created to support participants, community and partnerships:

Core Pillars

- Self-Determination
- Capacity Building
- Cultural Revitalization
- Solidarity
- Networking

The people we work with

CRE is fortunate to work with Indigenous youth (First Nation, Inuit, Métis, Status, Non-Status) aged 14-29 across Turtle Island living in remote, on-reserve, rural and urban communities, while reaching for regional diversity of participants. When obtaining demographic data, CRE defines program participants based on the following categories.

Definitions

Participants

Directly engaged by CRE staff through programming.

Advisory/Review Circles

Support the development of CRE programs, inform program decisions and provide feedback on CRE programming.

Indirect Participants

Engaged by activities led by CRE participants (e.g., CREation grantees and their project/activity participants).

Collaborators

Provide support to CRE staff during programs.

Digital Engagements

Social media CRE programming, such as posts, livestreaming, and online surveys (e.g., CRE Explains).

About Call to Action 66 Pilot

In the 2019 Federal Budget, the Government of Canada named CRE as a leading Indigenous Youth organization to take up TRC Call to Action 66 for reconciliation and committed federal funding for a pilot project of $15.2 million over three years (2019/2020 - 2022/2023).

“66. We call upon the federal government to establish multi-year funding for community-based youth organizations to deliver programs on reconciliation, and establish a national network to share information and best practices.”

Budget 2019 set the goal of the pilot project as ensuring that “the voices of First Nations, Inuit and Métis are heard and to support Indigenous youth reconciliation initiatives.” Funding supports the establishment of a distinctions-based national network of Indigenous youth, helps ensure that Government of Canada policies and programs are informed by the diverse voices of Indigenous youth, and provides support to community events, gatherings for Indigenous youth and reconciliation-focused community-based Indigenous youth activities, etc.

GATHERINGS

In February 2020, over 350 Indigenous and non-Indigenous youth from coast to coast to coast attended the 8th Annual Gathering, presented in partnership with Concordia University and the Musée des beaux arts in Montreal. 55 sessions were offered over 3 days and included panels, open forums, cultural teachings, featured speakers, film screenings, networking activities and self-directed spaces to support Indigenous and non-Indigenous youth in the spirit of Reconciliation. Supporting these youths were nearly 100 staff, volunteers and partners.

INDIGENOUS YOUTH POLICY SCHOOL (IYPS)

Two programs connect change-oriented, solutions-focused Indigenous youth (18-29) to ensure their priorities are advanced and reflected in government policies and programs. The Indigenous Youth Policy School is intended to enhance the skills and capacity of Indigenous youth to become interested in making Canada's government more relevant to youth, who are often left out of the policy-making conversation. Over the course of nine months, they will learn from a variety of guest speakers about policy development, government advocacy, and systems change. They will be provided with the skills and opportunities to impact policy decisions that matter to them. The school will provide space for Indigenous youth to engage with peers through interactive online sessions on a local and national level.

552 Indigenous youth have participated in policy programming since January 2020. 30 Indigenous youths have been offered employment opportunities with the federal government and other agencies, and 6 of these youth decided to pursue careers with the federal public service.

In total, CRE has run over 464.5 program hours geared towards engaging Indigenous youth in policy and research.

INDIGENOUS YOUTH RECONCILIATION BAROMETER 2.0

The Canadian Youth Reconciliation Barometer was a new social research study intended to establish benchmark indicators for the state of reconciliation among the country's youth, as well as provide a foundation for monitoring progress over time. Since 2020, CRE has been revisiting this work and diving deep into the more complex nature of Indigenous youth and their views of Reconciliation.

Outcome 2: Indigenous Youth co-develop policy options

POLICY & INNOVATION HUB

With a central focus on Indigenous-led policy co-development, the Innovation Hub seeks to foster positive, meaningful and reciprocal engagement initiatives with various key stakeholders and build long-lasting partnerships. The physical location operating in Ottawa, Ontario on Algonquin Unceded Territory was funded separately from Budget 2019. "the Hub" has hosted online workshops with 8 Indigenous youth as panellists and over 107 audience members. While these engagements were funded separately, it is important to note that the capacity developed internally at CRE to build a Policy & Innovation Hub, as well as create a framework for engagement, would never have been possible without the contributions of Budget 2019.

PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYMENT AND EDUCATION READINESS

Program Sunset by August 31 2022

(Peer) programs respond to transitional gaps that Indigenous youth (18-29) in urban, rural, and remote communities across Canada face when preparing for postsecondary education or employment. 54 Indigenous youths are enrolled in the four-year Peer Program (Cohort 1, 2 & 3).

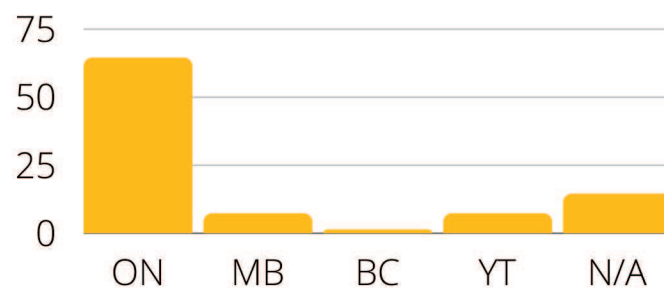

21 capacity-building workshops organized;

27 peers from Cohort 1 & 2 graduate as mentors

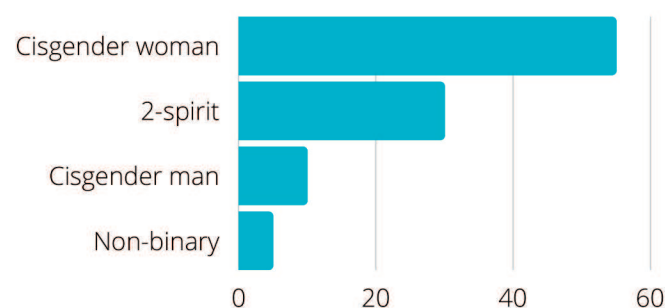

17 peers continuing their post-secondary education

150 hours of professional development sessions.

Outcome 3: Multi-year funding for community-based youth organizations to deliver programs on reconciliation.

CREATION COMMUNITY GRANTS PROGRAM

CREation Community Grants Program is a multi-level funding program that supports strengths-based, community-focused and youth-led projects taking place in communities across Canada. CREation aims to empower and support Indigenous youth to take ownership over the wellness of their peers. This program helps increase available resources for both incorporated organizations and grassroots collectives that seek to create impactful community change and enhance the wellness, resiliency, and engagement of Indigenous youth. CRE provides capacity-building for youth-led organizations in the form of innovative mentorship, educational resources, and workshops.

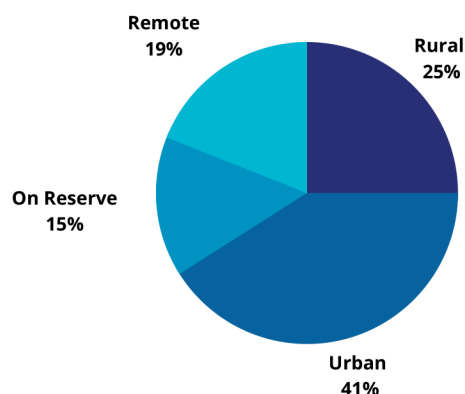

CREation was designed with two purposes:

1. To support Indigenous and reconciliation-focused grassroots groups and organizations; and
2. in response to Call to Action 66, to understand how governments, corporations, and foundations can better fund programming that supports Indigenous youth.

Over $4.5 million in funding has been mobilized to youth-led organizations and grassroots groups. CREation has given out 273 grants led by 776 youth leaders to run community projects. Projects have been run in all 13 Provinces and Territories and to date have reached over 66,000 direct youth participants and over 98,000 indirect (digital engagement) youth participants. An additional 47,000 participants (including Indigenous children, adults and Elders) have been reached.

Over 70 Capacity Building Sessions for recipients have taken place, with 767 youth participants, as well as 6 Relationship Building Sessions with 268 youth participants.

From 2020/21 to 2021/22, 25% projects have been funded in Rural Communities, 41% in Urban Communities, 15% On Reserve and 19% Remote communities.

Since 2020, CREation has worked alongside Advisory Circles and Review Circles comprised of 43 Indigenous youth and community members who provide strategic direction, leadership and guidance around the granting program, including reviewing and recommending groups for funding.
